14th Annual Spring Conference
1:45 - 3:15 pm: CCTS Scholar Presentations
Session B
THOROUGHBRED 3

Victoria King, PhD, Session Chair
Career Development Director, Center for Clinical and Translational Science
Associate Professor, Division of Cardiovascular Medicine, Department of Internal Medicine
University of Kentucky

Ana Bastos de Carvalho, MD, Session Co-Chair
Instructor, Media Retina Fellowship, Director, Implementation Science Lab Founding Co-Director,
Global Ophthalmology Program, Department of Ophthalmology and Visual Science, College of Medicine
University of Kentucky

1:45  “Genetic factors that influence Neonatal Opioid Withdrawal Syndrome (NOWS) in a WV cohort”
Richard D. Egleton, PhD
Associate Professor, Department of Pharmacology, Physiology and Toxicology,
Marshall University School of Medicine

2:00  “Improved Survival Following Transarterial Radioembolization of Infiltrative-appearance Hepatocellular Carcinoma”
Michael J. Nisiewicz
Medical Student, College of Medicine,
University of Kentucky (CCTS PSMRF Recipient)

2:15  “Pathologic Associations of Potentially Inappropriate Medication Use in Patients with Alzheimer’s Disease”
Paran Davari
Medical Student, Department of Neurology, College of Medicine,
University of Kentucky (CCTS PSMRF Recipient)

2:30  “Lex Ed: Comprehensive Sexuality Education Policy”
Kristen P. Mark, PhD, MPH
Associate Professor, Department of Kinesiology & Health Promotion, College of Education,
University of Kentucky

2:45  “Increasing the Value of Community-Based Diabetes Screening”
Pam Spradling, MA
Director of Planning and Grants Management, Big Sandy Health Care, Inc.
(CCTS Seed Grant Recipient)

3:00  “Family Medicine Clinician Interviews to Assess the Influence of Tailored Interventions on Prediabetes Clinical Decision-making”
Alisha R. Thomas, MD, MPH
Chief Resident of Preventative Medicine, Department of Preventive Medicine & Environmental Health, College of Public Health,
University of Kentucky

Center for Clinical and Translational Science
Accelerating discoveries to improve health™