

Balance and reaction time study enrolling now

Researchers at the University of Kentucky are conducting a study to investigate how reaction times and balance change while performing cognitive tasks. Also, researchers will monitor how complex environments impact performance among healthy, young, and active adults. Participants will be reimbursed $15 upon completion of study.

You may be eligible to participate if you:

- Are between 18-30 years old
- Are physically active
- Do NOT have any musculoskeletal or head injuries
- Speak English
- Are NOT pregnant
- Must NOT be currently in treatment for lower extremity, upper extremity, or head injuries
